DESCRIZIONE

The profession of knowledge transfer manager requires a series of competences which can be developed with specific courses and with a training on the job. ATTP (Alliance of Technology Transfer Professionals) identified these competences and experiences and has been promoting international standard for knowledge and technology transfer professionals. In particular, the RTTP (Registered Technology Transfer Professional) designation is awarded to professionals demonstrating such competences and achievement in the field (<https://attp.global>). More than 800 RTTP are currently designated in the world but, despite the good level of knowledge transfer managers in Italy, just a few of them are designated RTTP. This webinar aims at explaining the importance of RTTP and the details of application process, requirements and criteria, to help members of the Italian KT community who are interested in becoming RTTP.
